CHICKEN'S HEART GROWS FOR FILMS

Dr. Carrel Shows Swift Development of Cells From Fragment of Embryo.

SURVIVES OPERATIONS

Mass of Matter Has Been Bisected 1,500 Times, but Continues to Thrive.

NO LIMIT ON THE SIZE

Might Have Reached Proportions of the Earth if Knife Had Not Been Used.

Special Dispatch to THE NEW YORK HERALD.
PHILADELPHIA, April 23.—A doctor and two nurses look after the chicken heart which Dr. Alexis Carrel, famous scientist, has growing at the Rockefeller Institute in New York.

Dr. Carrel was present to-day at the meeting of the American Philosophical Society, bringing with him motion pictures of the now famous heart, which is not a heart at all but the cell proliferation from a small fragment removed from the heart of a chicken embryo in 1912. Dr. Carrel was accompanied by Alessandro Fabbri, who made the picture, and Dr. A. H. Ebeling, also of the institute.

The motion pictures showed an actual pulsating chicken's heart, caused to beat after the chicken was dead, and microscope movies showing the growth of the heart tissue preserved in Dr. Carrel's laboratory.

It was related by Mr. Fabbri that infinite pains are required to assure the continued growth of the cells. The nurses and doctors are in attendance every time it is removed from its incubator, where it is kept at the exact temperature of 103 degrees.

Every forty-eight hours the cell mass must be removed from the growing medium in which it is kept and a surgical operation performed on it.

Term of Life to Be Observed.

In the forty-eight hours the heart has grown to twice the size it was. With the whiteclad nurses in attendance, the surgeon with his rubber gloved fingers and sterilized instruments cuts it in two, severing the new cell from the old. Then the new cells are put back into fresh growing medium and the heart is put away for another forty-eight hours in its incubator.

The heart, originally a small particle of tissue, has grown to a large cell mass, bearing no resemblance to a heart. If it were permitted to grow indefinitely, Dr. Carrel says, without the daily cutting off of the old cell growth, it would have generated a sufficient number of cells to form a ball larger than the earth. The present "heart" is the 1,500th "generation" counting each bisection as one. That is to say, it has been cut in half 1,500 times, and, unless something happens to kill it, will be susceptible of almost indefinite growth and bisection; that is, unless one of the developments of the next few years be the knowledge that there is a term to the life and vigor of cell proliferation, as cell growth is called.

The scientists present at the demonstration marvelled at the strange sight of tissue cells under a microscope, visibly growing as they watched the enormously magnified picture thrown on the screen.

Mr. Fabbri, in starting the motion pictures, remarked smilingly that he would "hate to say how many tissue cultures he had murdered." Dr. Carrel explained later that strong light has a harmful and sometimes a killing effect on the tissue growth. Therefore the pictures were made from the old cells, cut off from the new growth.

Six reels were shown, the first that of the beating chicken heart, from a fowl dead five days. "I have had that heart for 16 days," explained Dr. Carrel. The second reel showed the tissue cells in the mass pushing out new growth; the third isolated moving groups of cells; the fourth, the growing tissue brought out strongly under reflected light; the fifth, the movement of the protoplasm in a living cell, barely magnified, of course, and the sixth, the dying tissue as it gradually disintegrated and disappeared.

GOV. HARTNESS GETS INVENTOR'S MEDAL

Philosophical Society Also Makes Other Awards.

PHILADELPHIA, April 23.—Gov. James Hartness of Vermont was presented with the John Scott Medal, awarded for useful inventions, at to-day's session of the American Philosophical Society's general meeting here. The Governor received the honor in recognition of his fat turkey tail, used in making artillery. The medal is provided for by a fund established by John Scott of Edinburgh, Scotland. Others to receive it to-day were:

Dr. Edward Calvin Kendall of Rochester, Minn., for his "biochemical work of a high order, giving results in chemical structure that have benefited mankind." His most notable feat was the isolation of the iodine compound in the thyroid and the establishment of the chemical identity of thyroxine.

Dr. Charles Edward Kenneth Mees of Rochester, N. Y., for "special research in the structure of photographic images." Dr. Hileyo Noguchi, Japanese member of the Rockefeller Institute, for work in combating the yellow fever plague.

It was announced that late next month another John Scott Medal would be struck and presented to Miss. Curie, the French woman who discovered radium.

Quincy Wright of the University of Minnesota was awarded the society's Henry M. Phillips prize of $2,000 for the best essay on "the control of the foreign relations of the United States."

CORSAIR GOES AGROUND.

Morgan Yacht Works Free and Reaches Old Point.

Nonchalant, Va., April 23.—J. P. Morgan's yacht, the Corsair, went aground on Nantuxus Shoals, off Fisherman's Island, near Cape Charles, this morning, while entering the harbor in thick weather. The vessel, guided by cutter, MacIntyre, answered her wireless calls for assistance, but the Corsair worked herself free before the cutter arrived and proceeded to Old Point, apparently undamaged.
